In order to provide facilities on an extensive scale for post-graduate courses, advanced work and research in the various branches of science, engineering and technology, for which facilities in the country were inadequate, the Sarker Committee recommended in 1945 that four institutions on the lines of the famous Massachusetts Institute of Technology, U.S.A. be established, one in each of the four regions of the country. Government accepted this recommendation and the first institution named as the Indian Institute of Technology, Kharagpur started in 1950 in the eastern region as a Government institution. Although situated in the east, it has functioned as an All India institution in consonance with the original decision that these institutions should be open to students from all parts of the country. Later, the Institute at Kharagpur was declared by Parliament as an institution of national importance under the Indian Institute of Technology (Kharagpur) Act, 1956. The Act came into force on the 1st April, 1957 and the Institute has been since functioning as an autonomous body corporate.

2. The three other institutions named as the Indian Institute of Technology, Bombay, the Indian Institute of Technology, Madras, and the Indian Institute of Technology, Kanpur were started in 1958, 1959 and 1960 respectively and were registered under the Societies Registration Act, 1860. All the four institutions provide first degree courses in addition to facilities for post-graduate studies and advanced research. This requires and provides cooperation between work at the post-graduate level and the first degree level for the mutual benefit of both and also results in full utilisation of the facilities created in these institutions. They aim at training personnel who will combine the highest technical competence with broad human sympathy as well as a practical outlook and awareness of the social implications of planning. The institutes have already succeeded in creating an atmosphere which instils in the minds of students a spirit of objective enquiry and a sense of purpose and are helping them develop a balanced and integrated personality.

3. One of the important tasks of the institutions is to meet the present and future needs of industry and technology. They therefore have an individuality and purpose of their own distinct from those of a University. The broad objectives of the four Institutes are the same, although in their actual working, there will be difference of emphasis on separate fields, particularly at the advanced levels. The Bill seeks (i) to retain the individuality of the institutions by declaring them institutions of national importance under Article 246, read with 7th Schedule, List 1, entry 64 of the Constitution, (ii) to bring in the Indian Institute of Technology, Kharagpur, which has already been so declared and incorporated by an Act of Parliament, within the ambit of the proposed Act, and (iii) to make provision for the coordination and regulation of the affairs of the four Institutes. The Institutes will have the power to grant degrees, diplomas and other academic distinctions as at present possessed by the Indian Institute of Technology, Kharagpur.

FINANCIAL MEMORANDUM

The Bill contemplates the declaration of the Indian Institute of Technology, Bombay, the Indian Institute of Technology, Madras, and the Indian Institute of Technology, Kanpur, as bodies corporate. It also contemplates bringing in the Indian Institute of Technology, Kharagpur, which has already been so declared and incorporated by an Act of Parliament, within the ambit of the proposed Act.

2. The Institutes will maintain the departments covering various fields of science, engineering and technology for training of technical personnel. Finances required by them for exercise of their powers and discharge of their functions shall be payable by the Central Government in the shape of grants-in-aid each year. At this stage it is not possible to frame an accurate estimate of the manpower, equipment, etc. needed to enable the Institutes to exercise their powers and discharge the functions provided under the Bill but, since the development of the Institutes will be according to the proposals that may be approved by the Government, the funds to be given will be for programmes so approved. They will depend on the number of courses and departments that may be opened by each Institute as determined by the Government, to fulfil its obligation to the industrial needs of the nation. The Indian Institute of Technology, Kharagpur, since its inception in 1950, has incurred an expenditure of about Rs. 5.84 crores on buildings (including those for the residence of students and members of the staff) and equipment upto the end of the Second Plan period and proposes to spend another Rs. 1.6 crores during the Third Plan period on these items. Having regard to the fact that costs of building and equipment have risen considerably, it is estimated that the non-recurring cost on each of other three institutions will be of the order of about Rs. 8 crores. The annual recurring expenditure of the Indian Institute of Technology, Kharagpur reached a level of Rs. 65 lakhs in 1960-61 (the last year of the Second Five Year Plan) and is expected to be of the order of Rs. 85—90 lakhs in 1965-66.

3. The following Budget provisions have been made for grants-in-aid to the Institutes during the year 1961-62 under Demand No. 81-S.R. & C.A. for each of the institutions:—

(In lakhs)

Indian Institute of Technology, Kharagpur	Rs. 131.36
Indian Institute of Technology, Bombay	Rs. 137.28

Indian Institute of Technology, Madras	.. Rs. 132·65
Indian Institute of Technology, Kanpur	.. Rs. 121·88

Funds to be made available in the subsequent years will be determined each year. The total provision made for grants-in-aid to the four institutions during the Third Five Year Plan (April, 1961 to March, 1966) is Rs. 19·02 crores.

4. The Institutes have been empowered to receive grants, gifts, donations, benefactions, bequests or transfers from private bodies or individuals.

5. All monies placed at the disposal of each of the Institutes will constitute the Fund of the respective Institute and will not lapse at the end of the year. It shall be taken into account in making funds available to the respective Institute in subsequent years.
